The Firestorm Expert Council™ is an advisory group made up of specialists from various disciplines, professions and industries. The Expert Council is designed to bring subject matter knowledge and expertise to Firestorm and its clients. The members of the Expert Council lend credibility and skills to the work which Firestorm performs, both through their direct involvement and the weight of their reputations.

Firestorm's team of experts, each providing an independent perspective, will produce faster, more accurate results. Firestorm's methodology and Council members generate unique insights and assist our clients in developing the best solutions to their complex problems.

Firestorm Expert Council™ members may be asked to participate in consulting projects for individual clients, public relations or media events, meetings with government or regulatory officials or other assignments where their expertise and/or credibility will assist in, or improve the outcome. Projects needs may include services such as: telephone consultations, conference calls, site visits, workshops, document review, creation or editing of documents or materials, meetings and other events.

Firestorm endeavors to match Council members to projects based upon the need and the Council member's expertise. Firestorm selects specific Council members for each project team to optimize the skills required for an individual client. It is the breadth and depth of our human capital that distinguishes Firestorm from other consulting firms.

Individual Council member participation in a specific project is always at their personal discretion. Council members are never obligated to accept a project and may decline to participate for any reason. Membership in the Firestorm Expert Council™ requires no minimum time commitment.

If your company had to respond now, would you be ready?
